Story

Lucy and Lisa have enough: stress at school, fights with the parents, and a broken heart on top of that! They need a change of air! How practical that they are twins who both live with a separate parent: they decide to swap places for a while! Up-town girl Lucy moves in with their dad in the country, while country bumpkin Lisa joins their mother in the city. And no one seems to notice a difference...

Handsome boys, first love, plotting with the best friend and lots of embarrassing situations at school, parties or during the vacations...

Karen Christine Angermayer

Karen Christine Angermayer started writing short stories at the age of 5. She wrote them in a special script so nobody else could read it. Today she is the manager of a text agency and works free-lance as a ghost writer and author. She lives with her family in a small village in Germany and enjoys the quiet life in the nature.
