What happens in Volume 4:

A week has passed since the Galactic Gamers' last adventure - and Felix is looking forward to finally being able to discuss everything in peace with Dilara at school. But when he sees Dilara wearing a golden headband - the communicato - Felix realizes that it's Lysia, who has taken on Dilara's appearance to tell Felix that the next round of the Galactic Games has begun. In order to participate, however, Bargel must first retrieve his locator from the Blasting Defense Systems' lab. The Galactic Gamers travel through a portal to a dark and destroyed-looking world. What they didn't realize is that Dr. Moron had been following them. Now they have him on board as a referee at the Games. And they have to travel back and forth on the planet with the help of a time machine to save the planet from destruction by its inhabitants, who keep waging war against each other. Of course, in the end, the friends succeed - and when they tell Stefan in the schoolyard that they traveled back in time with Dr. Moron, on a planet that actually had burnout, but was saved - that's when their annoying classmate finally declares them crazy ...

Karl Olsberg

Karl Olsberg completed his doctorate on artificial intelligence, was a management consultant, manager at a TV station and founded several start-ups. His first novel "Das System" was published in 2007 and immediately made it onto the Spiegel bestseller list. Since then, he has not only successfully written novels for adults, but also for young people and children. The thriller "Boy in a White Room" was nominated for the German Youth Literature Prize 2018. His Minecraft novels, which he initially self-published, reached number 2 on the Amazon bestseller list. In addition, his start-up "Papego", which develops the app of the same name for mobile reading of printed books, was honoured as "Content Start-up of the Year 2016" at the Frankfurt Book Fair. The author lives with his family in Hamburg.
