Happy Ending? I'll be darned!

All this sneaky behaviour will have to stop, Luzie thinks. Leander must finally complete his triple jump, which will enable this guardian angel – sorry, Sky Patrol – to turn into a human. But, to achieve this, Luzie too must start by putting a bit of order into her own chaotic life. Her previous head-banging methods are not really the best way to do this. For his part, Leander also has a final task to accomplish. He needs to protect Luzie's unborn sibling. And – how could it be otherwise – Luzie's mother is making this incredibly difficult for him to do.

For the last time, Luzie and Leander struggle through the turbulent events in a day in the life of a maladjusted teenager and her worried protector, until they are allowed to fall into each other's arms.

Bettina Belitz

Bettina Belitz was born in Heidelberg in 1973, and very soon fell under the spell of the book shelves. It wasn't long before reading wasn't enough – no, she had to scribble her own stories down, too. After university, Bettina Belitz worked as a journalist until she was able to devote herself to her youthful enthusiasms. Nowadays, she lives surrounded by horses, sheep, cats and chickens in a village of 400 inhabitants in Westerwald, where she is inspired by nature and weather to write her novels.
