"Comprehensive economic education is an important building block for strengthening equal opportunities and social participation of young people in Germany. Only those who have the necessary basic knowledge can, for example, assess opportunities and risks when investing money and thus make self-determined decisions on investment, credit or insurance issues. Financial education is life education." Dr Christine Bortenlänger

Dr. Franz-Josef Leven

D. Franz-Josef Leven has experienced the highs and lows of the capital market at the German Equity Institute since 1989. He is a member of the Supervisory Board, author and lecturer at the University of Liechtenstein and the U3L at Goethe University in Frankfurt. For him, economic education is an indispensable prerequisite for democracy and a social market economy.
