Never for a moment did Lucie think it would be so difficult: now that Leander has done the triple jump and can no longer be spotted by his Troop, everything should have been okay. Stupidly enough, all the negative aspects of being human are affecting Leander too. And, since these include illness, Leander catches a chest infection at the first opportunity, which proves difficult for a doctor to treat, given that he is invisible.

Instead of being able to look after Leander properly, Lucie has to cope with a whole new set of problems. Thanks to the triple jump, she develops an amazing creative talent and starts designing clothes. That's a good enough reason for her friends to make sure that Lucie's biggest nightmare actually happens: the class is going to present the clothes that Lucie has made at the 'Ludwigshafen's Next Topmodel' show. Before Lucie is made to look ridiculous for all eternity, she comes up with a completely different plan with the boys from the race track. Leander wants to help, if he can get better in time...

- A fantastic approach to the most important issues about puberty
- Affectionately drawn characters, with a tongue-in-cheek sense of humour
- Fast-moving, sensitive, fun-filled - and simply fabulous

Bettina Belitz

Bettina Belitz was born in Heidelberg in 1973, and very soon fell under the spell of the book shelves. It wasn't long before reading wasn't enough – no, she had to scribble her own stories down, too. After university, Bettina Belitz worked as a journalist until she was able to devote herself to her youthful enthusiasms. Nowadays, she lives surrounded by horses, sheep, cats and chickens in a village of 400 inhabitants in Westerwald, where she is inspired by nature and weather to write her novels.
