Loewe Wow! meets Minecraft

In the village on the edge of the canyon, there is never a dull moment. Nightwalkers (zombies), bangers (creepers) and other dangers threaten the peace, but the villagers know how to defend themselves.

What happens in Volume 2:

Nano just can't get the last adventure on the island out of his head, and the emeralds he left behind. How the people from the village would admire him if he had come back with the emeralds!

But that's quickly forgotten when Maffi and he are surprised by a monster. The two are able to escape through a Nether portal - but Nano stumbles right into the arms of the Goldgrunts. He is captured by them, because strangers are not wanted there and must be sacrificed to the black spirits. Oh dear!

Luckily, Maffi has seen everything and, together with a friendly Goldgrunt child, is working on a plan to free her best friend from the clutches of the Goldgrunts. At the last moment, she jumps out of her hiding place and requests that she and Nano be accepted into the tribe. The leader doesn't like this at all. He thinks up three difficult tasks for the two of them, which they must pass in turn: they have to fight a great warrior, capture a rotten man and get a black spirit.

With brains and determination, they master all the tasks. When the mean leader does not want to keep his word, the Goldgrunts protest and the black spirit takes him to a deserted island. The child becomes the new leader of the tribe. And Maffi and Nano return to their village where, of course, once again no one believes their adventures!
