Maybe now, maybe never, maybe someday ...

Gabriella, Joana and Karla share a flat. To finance their studies, they all work at a catering company. And, the three not only realize their professional dreams, but also find the love of their lives. Refreshing Love Interest melting your heart away!

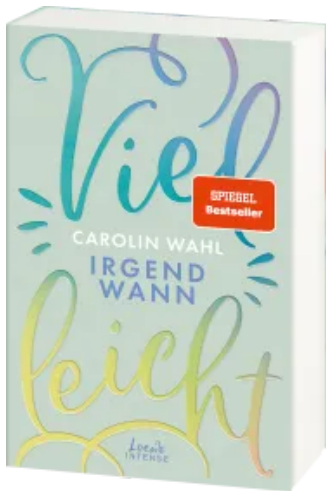

Since her older sister died in a fatal car accident, Joana does everything for a perfect life. She tries to follow her sister's dream, out of guilt. In her life everything seems to be perfect: nice (but boring) boyfriend, successful biochemistry studies, a job at the catering company, affordable flat-sharing and wonderful friends. But everything changes when Kilian, the brother of her best friend Karla, shows up in Munich again. Kilian doesn't fit into Joana's perfectly planned future at all. But he makes her feel what she has long suppressed – the real Joana, who actually wanted to become a make-up artist. Ironically, since she has been wearing a mask herself since the death of her sister.

- Feel-good page turner for New Adults
- Original plots in heartfelt narrations, leaving out familiar clichés
- Girl power: 3 self-confident protagonists and their strong friendship
- Stories about first steps towards independence: Career choices, fear of the future, parental pressure, exploring roots to find your place
