Heirs to the Magic of Plants

When Flora Cunabula passes away at the age of 107, she leaves her family not only a grand villa and the surrounding lands but also a powerful secret. A precious book is meant to guide Flora's great-grandchildren in making the most crucial decision of their lives: Will the two pairs of twins—Tierra and Sol from London, and Avia and Zacharias from Berlin—accept their family's legacy? For generations, the Cunabulas have protected magical plants, risking everything as part of a forbidden network to save them from extinction and exploitation. The twins have no idea how great the danger or how thrilling the magic truly is. But when representatives of a pharmaceutical company show up with irresistible promises, Tierra, Sol, Avia, and Zacharias must decide: Are they willing to leave their old lives behind and embrace their great-grandmother's legacy?

- The beginning of a fantasy children's book series set in the enchanting world of plants
- Featuring lavish black-and-white illustrations
- Exciting, atmospheric, and humorously narrated
