Hen Ottilie has had enough! She and the other hens have all the work of laying eggs and when it comes to the nice tasks like painting and decorating them, the Easter bunnies take over - and they even get celebrated by the children as Easter Heroes. This must come to an end. Ottilie plans a chicken revolt: Either the hens are allowed to help paint and distribute the eggs or they go on strike! The hares grudgingly agree and soon realize that having such an Easter hen on the team has some advantages. Together they set about painting and distributing and in the end it is a successful Easter for all!
