Simon is in terrible trouble. His brother is in prison on his account, and he hasn't a penny to his name, and no work either. Then he gets the opportunity of a lifetime: a well-paid job as a bodyguard. Simon's job is to guard Mia, the young heiress to the hotel.

Mia is furious because her father has taken her out of her Swiss boarding school. And, now, he has hired a babysitter to look after her! Mia is heartily fed up with this arrangement and has no qualms about letting Simon know it.

Quite unexpectedly, the two young people draw close in spite of all their arguments. But when Simon's former gang starts to butt in, their relationship is severely tested. Simon comes to realise that he really must give his life for Mia...

- A very romantic and dramatic love story, told in a refreshingly modern mode
- Alternating points of view provide an insight into the two main characters
