I can do this on my own! Children have new experiences and learn new things every day: Whether at the doctor's, when taking care of a pet or with their friends. This book takes children seriously. The little readers experience together with the siblings Ben and Lena what courage, fear or pride feel like and what it means to have a fight with someone, to make friends again or to take on responsibilities. Stories that help to be strong and to gain confidence - this is what parents want for their children.
