Story

- School-relevant topic: mobbing
- Includes questions about text comprehension
- Empowering and motivating

Victoria doesn't have a good start at her new school: First, nobody wants to sit next to her and then her classmates start laughing at her. But her mother gives her a power stone that bolsters her up. That way, Victoria finally finds really good friends.

This book strengthens children and shows in an empathic way how they can deal with teasing and mobbing at the playground as well as conflicts with classmates.

Press commentaries

"A wonderful book that helps children to brace themselves for attacks of all kinds ahead of time."

Elfriede Hirsch, BLLV Munich

"This book encourages children and shows in a sensible manner how they can deal with mobbing at the playground and conflicts with classmates. Recommendable!"
