Story

Zorro lives a quiet life in Little Dozington – but not by choice. He longs to be a hero, and would much rather be out having adventures than lying around in his little house, eating from his golden bowl. But all of a sudden, things start disappearing from Little Dozington: first his friend Hamsterina's special spanner goes missing, then a cushion belonging to his old neighbour Bernhardinovich. When his own golden food bowl vanishes, Zorro feels sure that there must be a band of thieves at work – and sees his chance to have a real adventure at long last!

Detective work is really rather complicated though! Zorro is starting to find the whole thing a bit scary – but he is determined to find and defeat the monster. In the end, Zorro wins the day and fulfils his dream of becoming a hero. He even gets kitted out with a superhero outfit including a mask, a hat and a cape – all ready for his next adventure!

- Zorro is a clumsy hero who will have the whole family rooting for him

- Lovingly detailed illustrations
- Little Dozington is home to lots of different animals that children will love, each with its own unique personality
- An inventor and an adventurer stir things up in the Fearsome Forest

Press commentaries

Press reviews for the series:

"[...] a lot of fantasy, humour, and a great text-illustration ratio, with original characters, surprising twists and little gags for reading adults."

German Foundation for Reading

"Child-oriented, funny, and filled with ideas that remunerate the reading."

Eva Maus, Eselsohr

"Katharina Bendixen tells the 120 page long story with many variants, so that both independently reading children and reading parents enjoy the story."

Laura Ramoser, Kreuzer

"Hilarious story full of funny ideas and original characters."

knax.de

"Funny adventure with a loveable and clumsy hero."

Eva Fauth, Duda

"An animalistic adventure fun."
