Story

I don't need my dummy anymore!

Peter has ten dummies and he absolutely needs them all! But then the elephant in the zoo grabs one, Peter trades one for a toy car and the deep-sea snake gets one, too. Suddenly they're all gone one after the other! So Peter gives the last one to his sister, because dummies are only for little ones and Peter is already big.

On each double page, a dummy disappears from the bar in the margin and finds a new home until only one is left. In this way, children are encouraged to part with their dummies and learn how to count.

- Funny rhymed texts encourage language acquisition
- Helps to get rid of the dummy
- Children will learn the numbers from 1 to 10 along the way
