Story

Finally, the singing competition in the savannah is taking place again! Dauber wants to take part too - and drives his friends into madness with his crooked singing. But nothing can stop a brush-eared pig from his plan. What's more, a group of crocodiles has settled at the waterhole and no one dares to go there any more. What now? Water supplies are running low and the animals have to do something!

Fortunately, Tafiti has an idea: with a ruse he convinces the crocodiles to take part in the singing competition too and makes himself available to them as conductor. The plan behind it: While the crocodiles are distracted, the other animals sneak to the waterhole and replenish their supplies. Will Tafiti's plan work and will the animals have unhindered access to their waterhole again in the long run? And who might the egg be that Brush has found and is now hatching under his cap?

- A new adventure from Tafiti and Brush

- For reading aloud and first independent reading

- Film adaptation in preparation

Julia Boehme

Julia Boehme studied literature and music and afterwards worked as an editor for a children's TV programme. One day she remembered that as a child she had wanted to become a writer. Right away she decided that from now on she was going to be a writer exclusively. Ever since she is creating new stories for television and writes children's books.
