A new adventure awaits Panda Pai in Vol. 3.

Everyone loves Robert! That's how it feels to Little Panda Pai, anyway – he thinks his friend Ruby the Raccoon and the other residents of the wildlife park are all ignoring him in favour of the newcomer. It seems nothing is too much trouble when it comes to making Big Panda Robert happy – he gets extra food, and extra wardens, and he's even appeared in the newspaper! But when Pai goes in search of new allies, he comes across some animals that are so bad-tempered and ignorant that they make him question his own behaviour. Does he really want to be as nasty to the newcomer as the narrow-minded badger?

Press commentaries

Press reviews for the series:

“Pai loses his prejudices and goes in search of his own identity. Lovely.”

Eselsohr

"It would be hard to find a book tackling the subject of origins and identity in a more appealing and accessible way for this age group."

buecherkinder.de

"A beautiful story about getting lost, self-discovery and self-confidence (...) that touches your heart."
