What happens in Volume 4:

Is this a vacation or a serious assignment?

Junior agent Nick is called to a Hollywood movie set, as a consultant. The film is shot in an old US Army air base. But on the very first day of shooting, Nick observes how the antenna of a transmission truck turns in the direction of the cameraman.

A little later, the man falls from the roof of a set. Everything points to suicide, but why did the guy look like he was being remotely controlled somehow? Nick has his doubts. And when almost the entire film crew disappears the next day, it's obvious: something is very wrong here. And again, Nick is in the middle of his fourth adventure. As secret agent Nick Nader, code name SPY.
