Story

Read, cuddle, fall asleep

Glow-worm Star shows little mouse Milli that she doesn't have to be afraid of the dark, and Milli can fall asleep with complete peace of mind. Little cat Pawpaw looks for a cozy place where none of his siblings will disturb him while he is sleeping. And after Daddy's lullaby and Mommy's goodnight story, even Bunny Hanna's eyes close, even though she wasn't that tired yet.

- Start of a new series: 10 lovingly told bedtime stories for ages 4 and up
- Little animal protagonists experience typical everyday situations
- Perfect for the evening bedtime ritual
- With tips from an experienced therapist to calm down at night

An exciting day at daycare, a fight with the little brother, a skinned knee, a lost cuddly toy ... every family knows these situations in which children get overwhelmed. Stories can help to show a way out, and that's why storytime is so important. Children can easily identify with the little animal protagonists. And the big readers get valuable tips on how to turn reading together into little islands of peace - time to cuddle, to discuss the day's experiences, to relax and come to rest.
