Story

What do you do when your biggest nightmare becomes reality?

- Trend topics: climate change and activism that move the Generation Z
- Highly topical: Fridays for Future movement
- Authentically narrated
- Perfect as school literature, too

In times of global warming and a rising sea level Annette Mierswa opens the eyes for a threat that will soon be reality. At the same time, she shows how personal commitment can have an impact. A highly topical YA novel that is thought-provoking and calls for action.

The destruction of Hamburg is around the corner. If the sea level will rise any further, a large part of the city will disappear below the water. There's no way Ava can stand by to watch her entire life being washed away. Despite every resistance, she moves into a protest camp on the farmyard of her classmate Kruso to fight against the threatening catastrophe. But is fighting with her parents and her best friend Leon worth the trouble?
